SUPPORT SERVICES TO ATTORNEYS FOR THEIR ELDERLY CLIENTS

Celtic Angels Home Health Care has been working with law firms throughout the greater Boston area, particularly the south shore and metro west to assist attorneys who have the responsibility to manage their elderly client's home health care needs including R.N., case management and social worker, companionship, homemaking services, vacation and family travel, doctor's appointments, medical needs and more.

While the attorney manages their elderly client's estates including long term care planning, health care proxy, wills, power of attorneys and special financial and legal needs, Celtic Angels Home Health Care's registered nurses and certified home health care professionals manage the day-to-day in home care needs.

CELTIC ANGELS TO HELP PHYSICIANS

With the demands of insurance companies and in particular their billing requirements, it's a continuing challenge for physicians to spend an adequate amount of time with their elderly patients, particularly to explore areas other than clinical.

Celtic Angels Home Health Care can often fill the gap between a senior and their physician when it comes to non-emergency medical and clinical issues. For example, a Celtic Angels Home Health Care Registered Nurse can provide a variety of skilled nursing

WEALTH MANAGEMENT PROFESSIONALS: MATTERS BEYOND MONEY

You know that your business is based upon trust. Your clients and their families trust you with their financial portfolio and with the expectation that you'll always work to have their best interest in mind. That is our same philosophy at Celtic Angels Home Health Care. Because we're in our clients homes for a minimum of 8 hours a day; sometimes 7 days a week (or in most cases 24/7); our client's and their families grow to trust us with their daily personal care. That's why we partner with many CPA and accounting firms to help support their elderly clients who are in need of R.N., case management and social worker, home health aide or CNA care; homemaking services or in home medical assistance.

A NOTE FROM MARIA BURKE, RN, OWNER & PRESIDENT

As a registered nurse and owner of Celtic Angels Home Health Care for more than 15 years, I've seen an explosion of in-home care needs among our elderly population. I work with attorneys, accountants, estate planners and many other professionals that find themselves in need of home health care support for their clients. Many of these elderly clients no longer have family members to rely on for transportation to medical appointments or coordinating in home care services. As the owner I am very involved with my clients care and work closely with our team of RNs and social workers to provide the initial assessments and my team, together, develop the very best care plan for each and every one of my senior clients. It has and always will be an honor and a privilege to work for and support the elderly whenever and wherever we can.

HELPING YOUR CLIENT AND THEIR FAMILY NAVIGATE ALZHEIMER'S

There are several initial signs that your client may be exhibiting that would confirm they are probably suffering from Alzheimer's. If they are showing these behaviors, it's time for someone to contact their physician:

- Memory Loss that impacts their daily activities
- Difficulty planning normal daily activities or problem solving
- Struggles to complete normal everyday tasks at home or work
- Confusion with time or place
- Trouble understanding visual or spatial relationships
- Decreased interest in work or social activities

These are just a few. For more information on symptoms and where to contact for help, visit the Alzheimer's Association at www.alz.org.
